WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today the requested presidential authority to call up 150,000 Reservists is needed to enable the United States to respond promptly and decisively if the international situation worsens suddenly.

McNamara appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee with Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to urge speedy approval of a resolution submitted to Congress Friday by the White House.

McNamara said the regular U.S. military forces "are strong today, and their strength continues to improve."

"The authority for a limited call-up of Reservists, however, would provide us with a flexibility of response which could be crucial if the international situation deteriorates suddenly and specific crises occur," he said.

McNamara testified behind closed doors but newsmen were given copies of some of his prepared testimony.

He said he hoped sincerely it would not be necessary to use the stand by authority to call up 150,000 Reservists while Congress is out of session.

But he said the resolution's approval would permit a prompt response to any crisis, "short of measures which would require a declaration of a national emergency—an action which would involve implications of a most serious nature."

"President Kennedy has made crystal clear his recognition of the threats with which we are faced, and the policy of this government not to allow the export of Communist aggressive purposes by force in this hemisphere or in other areas of the world," McNamara said.

"It is obvious to all Americans that we are in a period of acute international tension. It is also obvious that the forces opposed to us have the capability to precipitate crises, at the moment of their choosing, in many parts of the world—and that we must be able to respond promptly and decisively."

The secretary said the United States at any time may "face a challenge requiring an immediate and effective response," and that the enactment of the resolution would constitute "an endorsement by the American people of our determination to make that response, and provide us with the means to do so."

McNamara said the call-up of Reservists during a Berlin crisis last year provided tangible evidence of this country's response when our vital security interests are involved.

Since that time, he said, the Army has added five combat divisions to bring its strength to 16, the Marine Corps has brought its active strength to 190,000 men, and improvements have been made in the operational strength of the Navy and Air Force.

Before the Senate committee, Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told newsmen he anticipated quick action by the committee. The House Armed Services Committee plans to hold hearings Thursday.

High administration figures say the President's request is based primarily on concern over the tense Berlin situation. There also has been speculation that Kennedy made the move to show that the United States is prepared to meet any serious military threat arising from the shipment of Communist bloc arms and men to Cuba.

Senate Democratic leaders and defense officials have stressed that the President does not intend to call up reserves immediately.

Youths Feast on Hope Watermelons

LAST MONTH AN INSURANCE MAN FROM Hope, Creighton Middlebrooks, salesman for New York Life Insurance Co., attended a company convention at Corpus Christi, Texas. He took along on the 500 mile trip some 15 watermelons, averaging about 35 pounds each, which were given to the Texas City's Boys Club and some 900 youths enjoyed the feast. Middlebrooks told the Texans that Hope is the "capital of the watermelon belt". The largest melon grown in the world, he said, weighed 195 pounds and was grown in Hope. Last year's crop was not very good; the largest melon weighed only "160 pounds", he said. The picture above was published in the Call-Times and shows Mr. Middlebrooks cutting the melon for Tex Unroe, 9, center and Vidal Hernandez, 9, right. Needless to say the feast was quite a hit with the boys.

11 Garland Townships Abolished

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Eleven of Garland County's 26 townships were abolished Saturday in an order signed by Circuit Judge P. E. Dobbs.

Dobbs' order upheld action of the Garland County Court, which approved the abolition of the townships in December, 1956.

In January, 1957, the approval was reversed by then Circuit Judge C. Floyd Huff. The state Supreme Court, in May of the same year, reversed Huff's order and sent the case back for a new trial.

This year the county election commission asked the case, which had lain dormant, be revived. The original petition for the abolition was filed by the 1957 election commission.

The commission maintained that the doing away with the townships would cut election costs. Arkansas law requires that at least one polling place be placed in each township.

How the abolition will affect races for justice of the peace, committeeman and constable in the townships was not outlined. Julian Glover, chairman of the election commission, said he wanted to study the move before saying.

Republicans in the county termed the abolition political because they had some justices of the peace candidates in some of the townships.

China Reports Shooting Down a U2 Plane

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Red China, reporting it shot down one of two U2 planes the Chinese Nationalists bought from the United States, charged today the flight over Communist soil was part of a U.S. spy program.

The Nationalists confirmed that one of the high-altitude U2s they have been operating for nearly two years disappeared Sunday on a routine reconnaissance mission over the Red mainland.

A Nationalist spokesman said the U2s were bought from the Lockheed Corporation in the United States in 1960 and put into operation that December.

A State Department spokesman said in Washington that the U2 purchases were made with U.S. approval, but that operation of the planes was solely a Nationalist matter.

Officials admitted privately, however, that it could be assumed that information obtained from Nationalist U2 flights would be turned over to the United States in the normal course of intelligence exchange between two allies.

The latest U2 incident, announced over Peiping radio, came five days after the Soviet Union protested that an American-piloted U2 had violated Soviet air space over Sakhalin Island north of Japan. The United States admitted that one of its patrol planes might have been blown off course by high winds.

Peiping did not disclose the fate of the Nationalist pilot, but nationalist officials said privately they were convinced he could not have been captured alive.

It was recalled, however, that the Communists offered Aug. 8 to pay $280,000 in gold to any Nationalist pilot who delivered a U2 intact to the mainland.

Peiping's announcement did not disclose how the plane was brought down.

A Defense Department official in Washington said that if the Reds bagged the plane at its normal flying altitude of 60,000 to 90,000 feet, they must have the latest ground-to-air missiles at their disposal.

Assistant White House press secretary Andrew T. Hatcher said the State Department was looking into the incident and that word of the Peiping announcement had been relayed to President Kennedy in Newport, R.I.

Paul H. Nitze, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, declined to say whether the United States has turned over U2s to any other allied nation.

Winds, Rain Hit Most of Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

High winds whistled through the Clarksville area Sunday, while heavy rains fell over most of the rest of the state Sunday and early today.

Searcy got 5.23 inches of precipitation and Conway reported 3.11 inches. Fayetteville had 1.20 inches, Little Rock 1.28 inches, Pine Bluff 1.04 inches and Memphis 1.50 inches.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock reported generally heavy rains over the state, with most falling in the northern two-thirds. The showers put a quick end to a developing warm spell. Maximum temperatures Sunday afternoon ranged from 79 degrees at Walnut Ridge to 90 at Texarkana. Minimum temperatures early today dropped from 54 at Fayetteville and Harrison to 74 at El Dorado.

The record low for the date was 52 set in 1880.

High winds from a thunderstorm blew down the screen at the Ark-Air Drive-In Movie on Highway 64 about 2 1/2 miles east of Clarksville. The roof was blown off one barn and several television antennae and trees fell in the area.

The heavy rains during the past two weeks have relieved the August drought, and some areas report more rain than normal. Little Rock, for instance, has 39.01 inches so far this year, 4.13 more than normal.

Occasional rain is predicted today with cloudy and cooler weather expected.

14.6 Million Bales Cotton Are Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department's second forecast of the year today put the cotton crop at 14,687,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

Arkansas' yield was set at 530 pounds per acre and 1,490,000 bales.

The figure is 415,000 bales less than the first forecast of 15,102,000 bales. It compares also with 14,318,000 produced last year and 13,979,000 for the ten-year (1951-60) average.

This year's crop, like those of recent years, is being grown under a federal control program designed to prevent excessive production.

As it is, the crop will be supplemented by a reserve and surplus of 7,700,000 bales from past crops, much of which is held by the government under farm price supports.

Nicklaus Is in Spotlight in Golfing

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP)—When the incentives and the prizes are big, 22-year old Jack Nicklaus appears to be the boss of America's golfers.

He may have replaced Arnold Palmer as paragon of the fairways Sunday when he won the first World Series of golf—leaving the Latrobe, Pa., better and PGA champion Gary Player four strokes in the wake of his birdies and pars.

The sensational rookie from Columbus, Ohio, in his first year as a pro after winning a couple of national and numerous other amateur fixtures, hoisted his 1962 earnings over the $100,000 mark by picking up the first place check of $50,000. Palmer, first day leader by a stroke over Nicklaus and four over Player, had to settle for a second-place tie with the dapper South African—each getting $12,500.

None of the money won here, however, counts on the official PGA money-winning list since the "World Series" was rated an exhibition. Palmer remains the leader in money earned this year with over $100,000—a single season record.

Skeptics who thought Nicklaus' three-stroke victory over Palmer in the National Open playoff could have been a fluke were convinced that this 210-pound blond youngster from the Buckeye capital has all the shots he needs to carry him—and keep him—at the peak of the pile.

Palmer, putting sensationally, had torn this 7,165-yard Firestone Course apart in the first round with a 65—matching the course record. But he found himself only a stroke ahead of Nicklaus, who carved out a 66.

In Sunday's 18-hole stretch drive, Palmer three-putted the first two greens and hit a shot into a lake on the third—and Nicklaus was in front to stay. He clinched the big prize with birdie putts of 12 and 18 feet on the 10th and 11th holes, and put the finishing on the cake with an 18-foot birdie on the 36th hole for a closing 69. Palmer soared to 74, and Player matched par 70 to tie him.

Player, outdriven on every hole by his huskier opponents, had to rely on woods and long irons to reach these distant greens—but he played the most consistent golf of all as he had 29 pars to 25 for Nicklaus and 23 for Palmer.

For Palmer, it was a disappointing way to wind up his 32nd year. Arnie is celebrating his 33rd birthday today.

Cotton Harvest Needs 2800 Pickers

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)—The Employment Security Division has estimated 2,800 workers will have to be imported into three eastern Arkansas counties to harvest the cotton crop.

The counties are St. Francis, Lee and Cross. The ESD said Saturday its officials are talking with leaders of the 15-county area, urging them to help recruit pickers.

The ESD said it estimates mechanical cotton pickers will harvest 94,616 acres in the three counties and an additional 36,600 acres in Monroe and Prairie counties. In Monroe and Prairie, the ESD said, the labor force is nearly balanced.

Kenneth Graham said about 75 per cent of the cotton in Prairie and Cross will be machine picked. He estimated that about 92,900 bales will be picked by hand in these two counties.

Wildcats and Chicks Look the Best

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Staff Writer
What about Barry Hughes and the Fayetteville Chicks?

Who's got the best defense in the Big Nine? Who's got the best offense? Can Fort Smith repeat as Big Nine champion? Or are Little Rock Central and some others' possibilities at this stage. Too early to even guess who will be Big Nine king this year?

Some of the questions start getting answered Friday night when the Big Nine teams meet for the first time this season.

Hot Springs will be at Little Rock Hall, Fayetteville will be at North Little Rock, Texarkana ventures to Pine Bluff and El Dorado takes on Fort Smith.

Little Rock Central meets District 3AA's Little Rock Catholic High Thursday night.

Hot Springs tests its 2-0 record against the phenomenal Hall Warriors, who surprised everyone last week and beat Catholic High.

The Warriors, you'll remember, are the Indians with the Luck o' the Irish. For the Trojans, it will be the first step toward climbing out of the Big Nine cellar.

Barry Hughes put on the greatest individual offensive show of games last week—14 carries for over 90 yards, five touchdowns and three extra points for all of Fayetteville's scoring in a 33-14 victory over Seaway.

But this week he meets the team that showed the best defense. North Little Rock's Wildcats held Sabine to 20 yards total offense. It should be interesting.

Fort Smith showed the second-best defense and the second-best offense last week. The Grizzlies seconded North Little Rock on defense and Little Rock Central on offense.

The combination of the second-best last week may hold true long enough for the Grizzlies to capture the Big Nine championship again this year, as they did last.

But first there's El Dorado. The Oiltown Wildcats pulled 20 points ahead of Snackover before the Buckaroos made the scoreboard and El Dorado coasted to its first victory of the season.

Even with its outstanding offensive and defensive showing, Fort Smith beat Van Buren by only nine points. But, then, the early games have been the hard ones for Fort Smith to win.

Pine Bluff makes its season debut with Texarkana, which lost to Hope, 12-0. Robert E. (Swede) Lee is rebuilding at Texarkana, but rebuilding programs take time to jell and it may be too early.

Then, again, Pine Bluff, for all its physical potential, is banking on a lot of youngsters who haven't much experience.

Act 1 Means More Money to Schools

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Department of Education made public Sunday its analysis of Initiative Act 1, the school financing measure, and the report estimated the law, if adopted in November, would increase school revenues by $1.5 million a year.

Conclusions from the analysis were disclosed at a meeting of the State Board of Education with Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

The report said the act would take from the legislature part of its prerogative to interpret educational needs and appropriate funds accordingly and that it would "drastically curtail" influence of state fiscal authorities and the governor in budget making and make conservative state budgeting difficult.

Neither Faubus nor the Board of Education made a statement about the act after the meeting.

The board may make one at its regular monthly meeting today.

The proposed act would allocate a minimum of 50 per cent of general revenues to public schools.

Education Commissioner Arch Ford said the analysis, prepared by the Education Department at the request of the board, was simply an analysis and was not intended to pass judgment on the act.

However, the report probably could not be considered favorable to the act.

When the Berlin situation grew tense last year, Kennedy received in five days Senate approval for a call-up of reservists. The 147,000 reservists were released this summer as East-West tension over Berlin eased.

Pentagon officials said Saturday they were confident they could put any new call-up into effect without most of the problems they encountered in 1961.

They cited new automatic record-keeping equipment, plus steps taken to weed out men who should not be in the ready reserves.

There were many complaints last year from activated reservists who already had served two or three years of active duty.

Defense Department officials, noting that the President's request specifically exempts those who were called up last year, said there still are plenty of combat-ready reservists available for future duty.

In addition, Pentagon officials have noted that since the 1961 call-up, two new combat divisions have been formed and three training divisions have been turned into combat units.

Diplomatic officials, commenting on Kennedy's request, said it appeared to be a warning to Soviet Premier Khrushchev to think twice before stirring up new embers in the already hot Berlin situation.

Spy Suffered Damage to His Brain

By ANTHONY WHITE

LONDON (AP)—A report today said drugs smuggled into Brixton Prison hospital enabled Dr. Robert A. Soblen to make his latest desperate bid to evade U.S. justice. The fugitive spy still is unconscious and doctors said convulsions indicate he may have suffered brain damage.

The Daily Mirror said investigators have determined that the drug Soblen took was not stocked by the hospital. Soblen, under a life prison sentence in the United States as a wartime spy for the Russians, has been in a coma since he collapsed in an ambulance Thursday on his way to the airport for deportation to New York. He had taken an overdose of barbiturates.

The Sunday Pictorial said a woman who brought food for Soblen was under investigation. The food was left at the prison hospital's gate.

There was no official word on the Home Office investigation into how Soblen got the pills. Earlier it was speculated that he had hoarded sleeping pills prescribed by prison doctors. The 61-year-old psychiatrist suffers from leukemia and said the pain interfered with his sleeping.

A Hillingdon Hospital bulletin Sunday said Soblen's convulsions, which began late Saturday night, "have to a great extent been controlled. But he (Soblen) remains unconscious."

Doctors said today there had been no further change in Soblen's condition.

Dr. Cyril G. Barnes, who heads the medical team seeking to rouse Soblen, said the convulsions began soon after the runaway spy's symptoms of heart fatigue eased.

"We are administering drugs and they are proving efficient in controlling the convulsions," he said.

Dr. Barnes said the convulsions were caused either by a hemorrhage on the surface of the brain or by a late effect of the barbiturates. Hospital sources said the convulsions in themselves were not dangerous if properly treated.

Dr. Barnes said the convulsions would slow Soblen's awakening from the coma, but gave no other indication of what his patient's prospects were. He said persons have remained in comas for years. Many die without awakening.

Soblen's wife, Dina, a New York psychiatrist, has been at the hospital since Friday. She was pale and haggard from her bedside vigil.

25 Cotton Belt Cars Derailed

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—A southbound Cotton Belt freight train derailed near Jonesboro Saturday night spewing 26 cars and their contents along tracks.

There were no injuries. Railroad officials said Sunday they still have not determined the cause of the accident.

The derailment of the 65-car train chewed up tracks of both the Cotton Belt and Missouri Pacific Lines. Telegraph and telephone lines were knocked down and service disrupted in the area for several hours.

Bulldozers and rail equipment was brought in early Sunday to start righting the cars and gathering up cargo scattered about.

The train was headed from St. Louis, Mo., to Pine Bluff. The cars left the track about 4 1/2 miles north of Jonesboro.

Ohio Girl Is New Miss America

NEW YORK (AP)—Lovely Jacquelyn Jeanne Mayer, a once chubby little girl who gave up eating lunches to realize her dream of some day being Miss America, began her year's reign here today.

But before leaving Atlantic City and the scene of her triumph Sunday, the auburn-haired beauty from Sandusky, Ohio, performed the last official act required of all the Miss America contestants. She ate lunch.

When she walked down the 167-foot runway moments after the Miss America crown was placed on her head Saturday night, Jackie presented to the cheering Convention Hall crowd a graceful and comely figure befitting a beauty queen. The hazel-eyed, 20-year-old Northwestern University student stood 5-feet-5, 115 pounds and measured 36-22-36 in the vital statistics department.

But four years ago, you never would have known her, she said at her first news conference.

"I was always chubby until I was about 16 years old," she said. Her weight?

"I guess it's all right to say it — I weighed 150 pounds."

After her year as Miss America, Jackie said she intends to complete her education at Northwestern. She hopes eventually to become an actress.

"The Miss America scholarship was one of the most important things to me. Now I can go on to my masters degree, or even my doctorate, if I decide I'd like to do that much," she said.

Her title carries with it a $10,000 scholarship, and personal appearances during the year are expected to bring her about $75,000.

Scholarships also went to the four runners-up—Miss Wisconsin, Jean Mary Engel, $3,000; Miss Texas, Penny Lee Rudd, $2,500; Miss South Carolina, Evelyn Keith Ellis, $2,000, and Miss Hawaii, Patricia Lei Anderson, $1,500.

Week Sees Political Speedups

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas bi-partisan factions began squaring things away over the weekend for the two-month political battle before the November general election.

Willis Ricketts of Fayetteville, a 37-year-old pharmacist seeking the governorship, formally opened his campaign on a positive note, saying he would not attack Gov. Orval E. Faubus, the Democratic nominee for a fifth term.

Ricketts, speaking in Fayetteville to about 250 supporters, said attacking Faubus had been tried and proven unsuccessful.

The Democratic party appointed Ted Morley, a former staff member of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, as its campaign manager.

And in Craighead County, supporters announced a breakfast for Sept. 22 to honor Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark. The breakfast will follow a Democratic rally scheduled the night before.

Fulbright, successful in a party campaign against Winston Chandler of Little Rock, faces Republican Dr. Kenneth Jones in the November election.

Jones, of Little Rock, has planned a vigorous race against Fulbright. He opened his campaign two weeks ago and has on his itinerary for the next 14 days visits to major cities in all sections of the state but the southeast.

Ricketts barely mentioned Faubus in his Saturday night talk. He re-stated a platform calling for abolishment of the poll tax, passage of permissive voting machine legislation and the limiting of the term of office for governor to one four-year period.

Jones, from the same podium Saturday, accused Fulbright of opposing the abortive Cuban invasion in April, 1961. He said the entire Cuban problem would have been solved at that time.

The appointment of Morley was announced by Tom Harper of Fort Smith, Democratic state chairman.

Morley, now a salesman for an appliance firm, was with the War Finance Committee of the Treasury Department in World War II. The state Democratic committee voted to actively campaign for candidates this fall.

Harper said it appears that the GOP campaign this year will be amount to "vigorous opposition" for Democrats and added, "We had better do something about it."

Cocktail Lounge Siren One Too Many For This Wife

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: You preach compromise in married life. I've done nothing else all the years of my marriage. Why shouldn't a husband adjust himself to his wife's idiosyncrasies for a change?

Solomon and his lady loved nothing on my husband. I hoped an adoring wife and comfortable home would prove a happy substitute. In the beginning I cried myself to sleep then became resigned to the inevitable.

My husband had the good taste to pick women in our own class. Now, alas, it's another story. His latest flame is a cocktail lounge hostess whose motto is, "Me for money."

As senior partner of a discount house, he's doing all right; but after footing the fancy drink bill—imported champagne at $16 a bottle, and keeping the lady in style—even his bank account is going to be flattened.

Friends began talking. He thought he could reform the girl. She said if he could take her away from it all, she might do better. Instead, she did worse.

My husband's best friend, a former playboy, advised him to go home and take care of his family. The friend, acting as intermediary, told me the whole shabby story and thinks I should forgive and forget.

So far I've kept it from the children — the oldest is 20, the youngest 5, as they love their daddy. What would you advise? —Disturbed

Dear Disturbed: Compromise is not the surrender of all principle. It is a settlement or agreement reached by mutual concessions. In order to compromise you must hang on to certain objectives, if only for the purpose of barter.

Your main objective, of course, is preservation of your marriage. For this reason, your husband should be made to realize that he simply cannot consort and carouse with this tavern siren. By doing so, he violates the law of compromise and courts disgrace and poverty for himself and his family. Take a strong stand on this issue.

If he can't see it, bring him to time by talking divorce. The ex-playboy friend who has been acting as intermediary might sit in on the conference. He speaks from experience and your husband evidently listens to him.

Dear Helen: My conscience won't let me sleep. I am a 17-year-old senior with many friends, nice home and two of the most wonderful parents in the world who trust me. Now I am burdened with guilt, having betrayed that trust.

The boy I have dated for a long time left in August for the Service. We made love on our last night together. Fortunately I am not pregnant but I feel so ashamed.

His frequent letters are filled with love for me and plans of our marriage as soon as his tour of duty is over. He is coming home on leave in October and I fear the same thing will happen again.

My feeling toward him is tender — could that be love? I'm not ready for marriage. I want to finish school and make something of my life so that my parents can be proud of their daughter. They expect so much of me.

I want them to love me for what I am, not for what they think I ought to be. Should I tell them of my guilt? Life was hum-drum until this boy and I made love. Now I see it through rose glasses. The very thought of seeing him thrills me in spite of my guilt. Please tell me what to do. —Bewitched, Bothered and Bewildered.

Dear Bewitched: Keep your own counsel. Since you already repent in your heart, that is sufficient. To tell all would be to needlessly hurt others as well as yourself.

Having recognized the error of your ways, take care not to repeat the mistake. This requires strength of character, but that's all part of the development of a human being. You will have to be stronger than the boy.

Fortunately, it has been given to women to be strong — if they want to. What you and your soldier mistake for love is probably only sex. Get acquainted with his mind first. Then, if your tastes are similar and his ways your ways, talk of marriage.

Dear Helen: There is a crisis in our family and the cause is my Grandma. She and Dad don't get along. He had a stroke and Mom asked her to leave (she's Mom's mother). Dad got better; she came back and Dad got worse.

Now Dad, Mom and my boy friend and I plan a two-week vacation in Florida. Grandma doesn't want Mom to go even though my elder sister will stay with her. Dad grows more irritable by the minute and I fear Grandma will bring on another stroke for him. This is an emergency. —Worried Daughter

Dear Worried: Feeling as you do, talk to the family doctor and, if he agrees, speak frankly to your mother and grandmother. Remind them that having suffered a stroke, peace of mind is of paramount importance to your father; so for this reason your grandmother should live elsewhere. But regardless of the current crisis, no home is big enough to contain family and in-laws without friction, unless they are exceptional people and even then annulment of the March 18 election is a strain. As for the trip to Florida, if your father wants to go, go! He comes first!

Money to Be Raised for Church

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Plans are being made to raise $25,000 to rebuild two Negro churches which burned in this racially troubled southwest Georgia area where an FBI agent was attacked by a white farmer in the latest outbreak of violence.

The farmer, Virgil Edmund Puckett, 58, was held in jail on a charge of assaulting a federal officer.

Civil rights leaders pledged to help rebuild the churches in the nearby Sasser area and intensify their Negro voter registration campaign.

Negro athlete Jackie Robinson agreed to serve as honorary chairman of a drive to rebuild the Mount Olive Baptist church at Sasser, 14 miles northwest of Albany; and the Mount Mary Baptist church, about four miles from the other church. Both burned Sunday.

Two of the FBI agents in the area were investigating the fire at the Mount Mary church when a farmer drove up in a truck, verbally abused the agents, threatened to whip them and four spectators present, and jumped to the ground.

The FBI said agent Paul Mohr was hit a glancing blow which broke his glasses.

Sheriff Z. T. Mathews said, "We're making a complete investigation of the fires." The sheriff said officers had found no evidence of arson but a state fire marshal was summoned from Macon.

In recent weeks, there were two incidents of gunfire attacks and one other Negro church fire.

Dennis Going to Grow Up a Little

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - After three years, during which "Dennis the Menace" has defied time by remaining a six-year-old boy, CBS' young blond star is going to start growing up—just a little.

Jay North, who in reality is 10, is going to get out of those oversized play suits and into garments better adapted to his calendar age. But even in long pants Dennis will continue to harrass his long-suffering next-door neighbor, Mr. Wilson, when the series begins its fourth season on CBS Sept. 30.

According to present plans, the dialogue given to Dennis will also be a bit more mature — those baby-type lines will hereafter go to Billy Booth, who will inherit Dennis' old costume and some of his more infantile characteristics.

It's hard to be absolutely frank about the "Miss America Pageant" which turned up Saturday night right on schedule on CBS. Over the years it has built some sort of a warm spot in America's great heart, and now it's one of those things like motherhood, apple pie and Robert Frost that everybody is for.

Okay, so I'm going to come right out and say it. I think the "Miss America Pageant," which will get a rating bigger than Bob Hope's, is one great, endless bore.

Two and one-half hours is a long time to wait to find out what lucky girl is going to make a lot of loot in the next 12 months traveling around advertising a television set manufacturer, a home permanent, and a soft drink.

The part that bothers me, however, is that talent contest — it makes the Ted Mack show look as slick as a Noel Coward play.

There are "Miss America Pageant" fans of my acquaintance who take sadistic delight in that dreadful, foolish question period which apparently is the clincher for the title. On Saturday night, my vote went to that pretty girl from Hawaii who, when asked what she found most difficult during her five days in Atlantic City, looked right at the camera and replied, "Keeping my composure."

which also occur in the fallout from nuclear weapons explosions. Radioactive iodine is the third.

Declaring that reactor wastes are similar, in general, to water supplies which would be contaminated by fallout in a full-scale nuclear attack, Lacy said:

All of the six clays tested showed good ability to remove cesium from the wastes, and four of the six showed high efficiency in removing radioactive strontium.

The clays work by absorbing the radioactive materials — much like the action of a sponge — once they are added to a liquid containing the dangerous, radiant stuff.

An ounce of clay is enough to remove most of the strontium-90 from a gallon of water under some conditions, while cesium-137 can be removed three times as efficiently.

Lacy said the clay soils tested, ranked in the order of their ability, to remove strontium-90, were: Conasauga shale, Pithian illite, New Mexico kaolinite, Wyoming bentonite, North Carolina vermiculite, and Utah halloysite.

Those are two of the three most-feared radioactive isotopes.

Radioactive Water Is Easy Cleaned

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Common clay offers a cheap and efficient means of purifying water contaminated by radioactive fallout from a nuclear attack, a government scientist reported today.

Widely occurring types of clay also offer a good bet for aiding in the disposal of radioactive "garbage" — the wastes of the atomic industry — the American Chemical Society was told by radiological chemist William J. Lacy of the federal Office of Civil Defense.

In a report prepared for the opening of the 142nd national meeting of the ACS—a conclave being attended by more than 10,000 chemists and chemical engineers — Lacy described research conducted at the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge, Tenn., National Laboratory.

Six types of clay were tested for their ability to remove radioactive strontium-90 and cesium-137 from the liquid wastes of nuclear reactors.

Those are two of the three most-feared radioactive isotopes.

THE STORY: Stephen Pendergrass, cattlemen and bankers, discusses the fate of William Ivey, former range detective, with his brother Judge Albert Pendergrass, who sentenced Ivey to hang for murder. Stephens says Ivey is innocent.

Austin and go through whatever legal red tape you have to in order to get Ivey out of jail. Then I'll stand behind your two-bit job as a judge. Otherwise I promise nothing; I can't control the forces you're stirring up." He headed for the door.

The judge said quietly, "Please do not leave under a misapprehension, Steve. I have no intention of doing what you suggest."

"Then don't come crying to me on your knees!" the big man screamed. He seemed so carried away that he could not operate the doorknob. When he had finally opened the door, he passed through and slammed it with all his might.

The block dominated by the Robert Lee Hotel was crowded with horses on either side of the street. Some few cowmen were still entering, and Youngblood was glad to see that the dining room off the lobby was already almost full. Still his badge seemed to him to stick out as big as a sign on a salon.

The president of the Association was named Ogle, a somewhat hesitant old man with white hair. He tapped sporadically with a wooden mallet, standing waiting for the group to give him his attention. "I guess everybody knows why we're here," he began. "We voted a pretty big sum of money for lawyers' fees, and . . . could I have your attention, please? Anyway, I understand that two of our lawyers have gone to Austin, and Mr. Pierson is here today."

"What kind of a meeting is this?" someone in the rear interrupted. "Ogle, the first thing we need to do is clear some of these guys out that don't belong in here."

"Yeah," someone agreed. "We need to elect us a bounce."

"We don't need a bounce. Let's just throw them out."

"There's a newspaper editor in here. What kind of a meeting is this supposed to be anyway?"

Charles Moss rose in the confusion and answered what he had taken as an objection ever since it started, and I got my own ideas, and I ain't leaving just because somebody don't agree with me."

Ogle tapped some more with his mallet. "Boys, I understand . . . Uh, Mr. Pierson says we got to hear him first."

While more objections and arguments were going on, Youngblood was looking over the room. About 60 men were present, many of them owners, most of the rest foremen or hands who had extra responsibilities.

"One thing for sure, we can't talk at this meeting," a rancher named Taylor was saying.

"I move that we break up this ruckus just as soon as we can figure out some place to meet where we'll have a little privacy."

Mr. Pendergrass rose on the other side of the room. The room became quiet immediately.

"I would be happy to welcome some of my friends out to the Rail-P in the morning," the big man said. "Please come at nine o'clock. Anybody that's got a long ride to make home, you're welcome to go on out to the Rail-P if you don't want to stay in town. We'll put you up some way." He was silent for a minute, turning slowly to look over the gathering. "This won't be an Association meeting tomorrow. If you voted against hiring lawyers for Ivey, please come to see me some other time."

Youngblood was thinking about the obvious respect the crowd had for the rancher-banker. It was hard to make out the man, but he was not simply the benevolent and hospitable old man he seemed.

The lawyer asked, "Do you want me out there, Mr. Pendergrass?"

The big man smiled. "Maybe the less we say here, the better. Any other invitations will be given in private." He sat down.

Youngblood caught up with his uncle on the porch of the hotel and shook hands with him. Charlie Moss was smiling, as was his habit. He had a pink face that looked as if it had been scrubbed with a rough wash cloth. He had a reputation of being an easy man to work for. The deputy grinned. "I don't guess you'll be out at the Rail-P party tomorrow."

"I haven't got time to mess with them even if I was invited," Charlie Moss said. "If they give me a hard time, I'm liable to hold a party of my own."

"Do you think they'll do anything, Uncle Charlie?"

"They'll do something sooner or later, if those lawyers don't get Ivey out. I wish you weren't right in the middle of it, boy."

"How many men voted to hire the lawyers for Ivey?"

"It was plenty one sided. About ten to one. But I'm serious about you coming out to the place, son. This would be a mighty good time to quit this law job."

"That's according to how you look at it, Uncle Charlie. But I'll tell you what I would like to do. I'd like to bring Lila out there, get her out of it."

"You bring her right on, boy. She'll be welcome."

Youngblood had stepped off the porch and was heading toward the courthouse when Ogle called to him, "Could you come here a minute Deputy?"

He went back and Ogle said, "Mr. Pendergrass asked if you would join him for a minute if you have time."

"Sure," said the deputy.

He went back into the dining room, which was almost empty now. Mr. Stephen Pendergrass was sitting alone at a table with a whisky bottle and two glasses.

"Sit down, Mr. Youngblood, and join me in a drink."

"No, thank you, Mr. Pendergrass, I just have a minute."

"Suit yourself. Well, young man, I was interested in seeing you at our meeting this afternoon. First you've attended since you started working for the sheriff. Whose idea was it? Yours or somebody else's?"

Youngblood knew that he was not merely passing the time of day, and he wanted to find out all he could without telling anything. "Let's just say I dropped in."

"Well, the reason I ask, young man, I aim to be frank, as I said. I pay my hands $35 a month. They tell me you're a top hand. I'll pay you $50. Now, you may be inclined to say no' but I want you to think it over. There's another possibility; the Association has hired a detective at times in the past. You've had experience as a lawman, and if you're interested, I'll place your name before the Association; I have some influence with the other ranchers. Besides that, you may have heard that some people don't believe Bell is much of a man for the sheriff's job. He just can't handle it. I've been looking for somebody to back in the next election for sheriff. If you go to work for me or the Association and do a good job, and I won't forget you. You think it over."

"I'll think it all over, Mr. Pendergrass."

Delighted Demos Are Alarmed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - William L. Spicer of Fort Smith, state Republican chairman, said today he is delighted that the Democrats view the GOP efforts in Arkansas with enough alarm to establish a state campaign office.

The Democratic State Committee voted this week to set up headquarters for the November general election for the first time.

"It is true that the Democrats will have much to be concerned over this fall as the thousands and thousands of Republicans throughout the state are being joined by many thousands of dissatisfied and disillusioned Democrats in Arkansas," he said.

Dr. Kenneth Jones, GOP candidate for the Senate, said he viewed the Democrats' action with amusement and interest.

"This is a bit unusual," he said. "Speaking for the senatorial race alone, one would have to come to the conclusion that they are taking this race seriously."
